Weston Favell to Billing, 2.5 miles 3 locks

Once leaving the moorings at Weston Favell you come to the first of the guillotine locks. They are not as daunting as they look. Our way of locking down the Nene is by holding the back rope around a bollard behind the boat as when the guillotine is first lifted the boat wants to jump forward.

Billing Aquadrome is difficult to get into, and you need to be careful that the entrance isn't missed. Go through the lock and alongside the pub garden and before the bridge there is a dog leg to the left into the lake which is Billing Aquadrome Marina.

There are moorings on the left for the pub, Billing Mill, when entering the lake, and more moorings over the far side of the lake for the boatyard and chandlers (Not open on Mondays). It is possible to moor overnight here, not something that I have done, but for sure it would be safe enough.
